

“The Daimler Limousine is here, Your Excellency.”

Ambassador arrives to present his credentials.

The Chairman to take the Chair.

The Admiral to take the Salute.

The Judge arrives at Court.

The racegoers at Ascot.

The Minister at the House.

All travel in State and arrive in style.

They arrive in the Daimler Limousine.

*Above:
The occasional seats are situated to provide ample leg room for occupants, as well as rear seat passengers.*

*Bottom left:
The famous Daimler grill. The first glimpse of the arrival of some celebrity, perhaps, or even Royalty.*

*Bottom centre:
An optional extra in keeping with Limousine luxury is air conditioning with vents in the rear parcel shelf.*

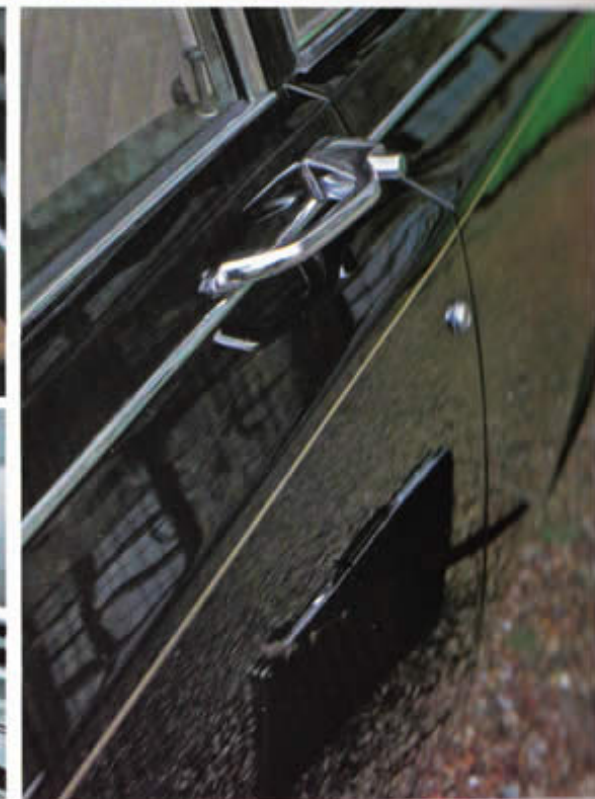

Coachwork by Vanden Plas.

The immaculate coachwork and finish of the Daimler Limousine are by Vanden Plas – a name as respected in the motor industry as Daimler, itself.

The fascia is made from the finest quality walnut veneers which are used throughout the car.

The superb paint work can be judged by the reflection – far right – of the suitcase in the door.

Like everything else in the Daimler Limousine all that can be done to improve the comfort of the passengers or the style of the car, has been done.

Above:

The luxurious fitted carpets sit on a thick felt underlay for quiet and comfortable travel. The rear and occasional seats are finished in West of England cloth or faced in finest quality leather.

Bottom left:

Footwell lights that come on automatically as you open the door, and light you into the car.

Bottom centre:

Optional extra adjustable reading lamps on either side of the rear compartment.

Bottom left:
The side arm rests in the rear compartment carry the courtesy light switch and, on one side only, the heater controls. You will find an ashtray and cigar lighter on the waist rail. The indicator light above it shows the passenger-to-driver optional intercom is switched on.

Bottom centre:
There is an electric clock in both the front and rear compartments. This is the one in the rear, between the folded seats.
